Dear Ms. Hesse:

I am writing to express my support of the settlement of the Microsoft anti-trust lawsuit that you are currently reviewing.

As the parents of two children in a small, rural Kansas school, I was excited to hear about the prospects of Microsoft donating millions of dollars worth of computer systems and learning programs to schools like the ones my children attend.

I have seen first hand the value of computers in advancing the education of my children and I firmly believe that, if accepted, this settlement could prove to be very beneficial to the education of America's children.

The government has wasted enough taxpayer dollars pursuing a problem that never existed. It is my hope that this fair settlement, which has levied steep and taxing financial burdens on Microsoft, will end soon.

Sincerely,

Rhonda Green
